Concept Note:

Globalization is the increasing interconnectedness of contemporary social life, transforming geographical distance into a less important factor in establishing cross-border economic, political, and socio-cultural relations. Sustainable development is a dynamic concept that focuses on meeting present needs without compromising future generations' ability to meet their own needs. It is a new path that sustains human progress for the planet for a long time, involving the interaction of economic, social, ecological, and technical systems. The Millennium Declaration in 2000 set the Millennium Development Goals, aiming to improve social and economic conditions globally, primarily in disadvantaged countries. This international conference aims to host comprehensive research papers in development studies, economics, finance, and related topics to advance knowledge and provide further research in these dynamic fields.
